THINKING OUT LOUD

By H. M. L. Jr.

These chaps who sit down to a typewriter every day and pound out a column of flashes for the masses have my sincere admiration. Doing the same thing twice a week gives me the willies. You sit down to the blank page and review your thoughts, struck dumb and paralyzed with amazement at how dull they are. Then finally you get your fingers working on the typewriter in the meager hope it will stimulate your brain. The best thing to do is to go next door to the Success Cafe and drink a cup of steaming aromatic coffee. Good-bye for now, readers.

You can sit back off the edge of your chairs, readers. I'm back from my visit to the cafe without any lightening flash except "When in doubt eat Ham and Eggs" and an impression that the red-headed waitress there has one of the nicest smiles in town.

Letting Faithful Reader sweat out the composition of a column with me gives me a lot of satisfaction and also brings to mind that other columnists suffer the same miseries. For instance: In today's "Nevada City 50 and 75 years ago," is an item from an ancient copy of a Nevada County paper, with reference to the Editor of the Nevada Transcript, our spiritual predecessor.. It states that that editor objected to be called a mandarin though "he is very nearly one." He is certainly a "me-anderin" around the county looking for the office of district attorney."

So you can see other editors have their trials and have had, since the rootin'-tootin' days of the gold rush.

At this writing, Lloyd Penrose is making a good recovery from his bout with the bees. Lloyd was out on a hillside off the Downieville Highway last week, gathering madrone branches as decorations for the Schreiber-Sharpe wedding, when he was set upon by a horde of swarming hornets. There were hundreds of them—so many that he pulled them off in handfuls.. He drove home in great pain and then went at once to the hospital where ice packs were administered. He's home now and feeling much better, though still a bit the worse for wear. No matter which direction I look, I can't see anything funny about this deal, but at the same time I can't refrain from remarking that it was a pretty serious beesiness.

There will be some big political doings in Grass Valley at this time next week and who am I to let the cat out of the bag early? Watch your favorite newspaper and I do mean the Nugget.

Here's a secret there's no use trying to keep any longer. The Nugget is proud to admit that it has two of the best printers in this part of the country. George Richards, a veteran of the first World War and a veteran of many decades of printing, and Kenneth Finch, who also has a number of well-spent years in printing to his credit. These two men are both all-around printers who can do things with type and paper that you'd expect of an artist with oil paints. They're the men who enable the Nugget to boast "No job too big or too small." They're the reason why this little shop is capable of turning out anything from the finest job in four colors to the simplest handbill. Elsewhere in this edition you'll see examples of their excellent handiwork and fine craftsmanship. They are assisted in this special edition by another fine printer, John Ruano.

File that under IF YOU DON'T TOOT YOUR OWN HORN NOBODY'S GOING TO TOOT IT FOR YOU.

In whose window would you expect to find a fish bowl full of coral brought to her by ex-servicemen who picked up the colorful bits of seastone in the Pacific War? In Coral's Lunch window, you say? You readers are smarter than anybody!

CREW WORKING AT ARCTIC MINE

By Edward C. Uren

L. F. Utter of Los Angeles has sold his summer home "Utter's Rest" three miles above Washington on the South Yuba but he has retained a portion of his tract upon which he proposes to construct another summer home as soon as conditions become more nearly normal.

Mr. Utter has entered into a long term lease of the Arctic Mine, which he controls, with Mr. Cadigan who, with a crew of six men, are now installing a compressed air line and also an aerial tramway to the Upper Arctic Tunnel which has been developed for some 200 feet along the Arctic vein by the late Henry Kohler, a man whose remarkable energy one must admire for he had to carry tools and equipment up this tortuous climb from rock to rock over gigantic boulders that had rolled down from the cliffs above, because there was no other way to get there.

The Arctic was first owned jointly by the late Martin Vanberg and Ole Helgeson in 1900. Mr. Vanberg had charge of the property and spent most of the last 40 years of his life upon it.

The Washington Chief, at the extreme north end of the group, was operated originally by Harry P. Stowe, who had to bring all his supplies in by pack mule from Washington. Stowe sunk a shaft 180 feet deep on the claim in ore which showed a value of $17 per ton.

The Arctic group consists of 17 cleams along Canyon Creek 7 miles above Washington in some of the most rugged country to be found in the Sierras. To give some idea of the terrain it may be said that the Cadigan development, although only 900 feet horizontal from the canyon is over 600 feet vertical.

From Bowman's dam it is but six miles as the crow flies, but it would probably tax the muscles of an athlete to follow up the canyon in a day along a course that has been so denuded by glacial action that it is barren of timber.

The drainage area of Canyon Creek above the Arctic is over 40 square miles and the headwaters extend up to both French and Jackson Lakes affording an expansive water runoff which the early miners did not neglect to use.. In 1879 the first crib dam was built in the canyon and in 1872 the North Bloomfield Company built from it same 39 miles of canal which would carry 2800 inches of water to their gravel banks at North Bloomfield.

On June 30th, 1927 the gates of the new million dollar dam of the Nevada Irrigation District opened to carry water to Lake Spaulding in Placer County.

There are eight known veins on the Arctic, none of which has been developed to any extent, although the Cosmopolitan, on the west, has been worked for some 600 feet and has yielded several hundred tons of $18 ore.

In 1912 the main Arctic tunnel was started from Canyon Creek and advanced straight into the hill for 1017 feet where it intercepted what was supposed to be the main vein and a drift was driven along the vein for 1200 feet south.

Some doubt has arisen however as to whether the vein so followed is the same vein as that exposed in the Kohler tunnel above, which shows values of from $17 to $85 per ton by the writer's sampling.

Mr. Cadigan's development in the Kohler tunnel, in which he proposes not only to drift but also to sink on the pay shoot, will determine definitely the position of the vein at the creek level.

The Arctic is one of the very few mines which is operated by its own power developed within its own borders. The abrupt drop of Canyon Creek makes it possible to obtain a fall of 237 feet with less than 900 feet of flume.

There is a Westinghouse 600 kilowatt, 60 cycle generator housed in a concrete building and a Rix 1800 cubic foot compressor with full equipment as well as two story office building, bunk and cook houses on the premises.

James Wallace Sharpe and his bride, the former Miss Elsie Helen Schreiber, are pictured cutting their wedding cake at the gala reception held at the home of the bride's father, Ernest E. Schreiber, following the marriage ceremony Sunday afternoon in the Trinity Episcopal Church.

WHAT CONGRESS DID FOR THE VETERANS

A flood of legislation affecting veterans was passed by congress during the last session. In case you missed some reports in the newapapers, here is abrief review of what the congress did:

1 Increased pension and compensation payments by 20 per cent.

2 Eliminated the reduction of pension when a veteran is in a veterans administration hospital or home.

3 Voted free automobiles for veterans who have lost the use of one or both legs.

4 Authorized the VO to operate a canteen service in its hospitals to replace privately owned concessions.

5 Placed tighter controls on the on the job training program and set an income ceiling for veterans enrolled in training under the servicemen's readjustment act. Subsistence pay plus salary cannot exceed $175 for single veterans and $200 for those with dependents.

HOGGING THE WORK

Thousands of ex GIs are being barred from jobs by the deliberate action of selfish union leaders, according to the findings of Winthrop Rockefeller, himself a veteran, who has just completed a five month survey of veterans' opportunities for the war department. Many unions restrict membership, to the end that under closed shop contracts, they maintain artificial labor shortages and assure overtime padded paychecks for the members.

"Nobody mentions the fact that thousands of businessmen haven't the power to give a job to a veteran," comments E. T. Leech, editor of the Pittsburgh Press. "They pay the wages—but have no authority to fill the jobs. If the union limits its membership so that there aren't enough workers to meet the demand, the employer is compelled to get along as best he can. That condition is known as "hogging the work" The U. S. Employment Service constantly appeals for businessmen to do their hiring through it. It ignores the fact that thousands of businesses are forbidden by contract from so doing.' Editor Leech sees as the only hope of correction some action by veterans organizations to clear away unreasonable restraints so that servicemen can get the opportuniies most employers would like to give them."

It would seem that one essential primary step in which business organizations and fair minded labor groups might well join with veterans should be return of the USES to the states. "Unreasonable restraints" could not long endure under intelligent action by state and community authorities in clear and rightful control of local conditions. Plainly the USES has failed in the paramount duty of guaranteeing that no man or organization may "hog" the job of a U. S. veteran.—Contributed.

Outdoor Living Discovered Early

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26 — Outdoor living in California is not merely a fad developed by fashionable architects; it was discovered by the earliest inhabitants, according to Dr. John W. Caughey, professor of history on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California.

In a chapter contributed to the new book The Pacific Coast Ranges, Dr. Caughey points out that the California Indians paid very little attention to either shelter or clothing. Dwellings were usually the flimsiest of huts, casually put together.

'Insinuation has been made that this original California architecture was unpretentious out of respect to earthquake dangers." Dr. Caughey says: "the real reason seems to be that out of door life was more inviting, and interest in housing almost at the vanishing point.

"Though various tribes affected sandals, rabbit skin robes or basketry hats, many dispensed with clothing altogether for the males. Exposeure to the elements apparently did not injure the Indians for they had stamina, athletic prowess and good posture. Colds were rare among them and tuberculosis unknown."

Cars For Legless Vets

Approximately 800 California veterans who lost one or both legs in World War II will be entitled to receive free automobiles from the government under an appropriation signed yesterday by President Truman, Veterans Administration offices here estimated today.

Authorization for the cars for amputees and veterans who have lost the use of their legs was included in the supplemental appropriation act for 1947 passed the last week by congress. The measure carries an appropriation of $30,000,000 to pay for the automobiles at a maximum cost of $1600 per car.

Only men who lost legs, or the use of their legs are eligible, VA reports in an initial analysis of the act. Thus arm amputees and veterans of other wars will not receive machines. California has an estimated 1200 amputees of which some 400 will not be eligible. The United States as a whole has an estimated 23,000 amputees of all wars of which 15,000 would be entitled to cars.

In northern California, San Francisco had the greatest number of amputees affected, with 37 amputees and possibly a dozen others whose disabilities come under the law. Oakland has 20 leg amputees and Sacramento has 11. A considerable number of amputees who have not yet filed claims with VA and thus are not yet in the files are expected to be disclosed through auto applications it was pointed out.

Veterans administration regional offices, 49 Fourth Street, announced the following regulations have been received from Washington.

1 Cars will be bought only for World War II veterans entitled to compensation for loss of, or loss of use of, one or both legs at or above the ankle.

2 The $1600 limit on price must include any special equipment or attachments necessary to enable the veteran to operate the machine. No part of the money may be used for maintaining or replacement purposes. The veterans administration will pay the total purchase price to the seller from whom the veteran buys the machine.

3 The veterans administration must first determine the veteran's ability to operate the vehicle safely and the obtain a driver's license under existing state laws.

Administrative procedures for carrying out the provisions of the new law are being prepared by VA in Washington and will be announced as soon as completed it was said. Applications from veterans will not be accepted until such procedure has been worked out.

STUCK WITH STALE BREAD

Not only can stale bread be "revived" to taste almost as delicious as freshly baked bread, but if you like it oven hot as well, Westinghouse home economics suggests this: Put bread in a paper bag—sprinkling the bread lightly with warm water if very stale—and close the bag tightly; place in a 350 degree oven for from 10 to 15 minutes.

California Counties To Receive 132 Million State, Federal Road Aid

California counties will receive $132,000,000 in federal and state funds for expenditure on county roads during the three year fiscal period beginning July 1, 1946. This sum excludes property taxes levied for road purposes and is in addition to cash balances now on hand in county treasuries.

Of this sum $15,000,000 will be received in federal aid for feeder roads, $12,00,000 from funds appropriated by the legislature in 1945 to assist counties in matching federal aid and $15,000,000 appropriated February 1946 for county roads.

With the current state gasoline tax revenue receipts running in excess of $75,000,000 annually, the counties will receive a like amount over the three year period. Under the law counties receive all revenues derived from one cent of the three cents state gasoline tax. Correspondingly $15,000,000 will be derived from motor vehicle registration fees.

Thus the counties will have an annual average of $44,000,000 in federal and state money for local road purposes each of the next three years. This is approximately twice the amount of prewar highway aid to counties..

MINIMUM IRONING FOR SLIP COVERS

While slip covers are still damp, Westinghouse home economists iron just the flounces and then work the damp slip cover over the chair. This not only eliminates ironing the back and seat but produces a better fit.

NEW RECORD SET FOR TRAVEL TO YOSEMITE

Typical of the increased tourist traffic that's making 1946 a record year in California is the report from the California State Automobile Association showing the number of automobiles and persons entering Yosemite National Park is up more than 6 per cent over 1941, previous peak travel year.

Up to mid-August 521,970 persons and 173,990 automobiles had entered Yosemite compared to 491,856 persons and 163,953 cars which visited Yosemite during the same period of 1941.

Another Bear Valley Grade Accident

Mrs. Jay Ajram of Reno is in the Miners Hospital here, following an auto accident on the Bear Valley Grade of Highway 20, 18 miles east of this city on Sunday.

Mrs. Ajram was driving and as she descended the grade she attempted to shift into low. She was unable to do so, the car gained headway, and ran up the bank of the left. It turned over twice, according to the report of Highway Patrolman L. L. Richards. Her husband suffered several broken ribs and an ambulance was called to bring him to the hospital here. Mrs. Ajram was badly bruised but was not hospitalized.

Additional housing units for students are now under construction on the Davis campus of the University of the University of California.

Warren Speaks On Role Of Newspapers

The newspapers of California have been a dominant factor in the growth of California from a wilderness a century ago to the third state of the union," Governor Warren declraed at Monterey last week.

Addressing a centennial celebrating the publication of the first issue of the Monterey Californian on Aug. 15, 1846 Governor Warren said the influence of the press, "great as this has been in the past, should be strengthened today" in keeping with even pending greater development of the state. The Californian was the first newspaper published in the state.

"By every measuring stick available, California at this moment stands on the threshold of her greatest period of growth," Warren declared. "I believe this state can accommodate 20,000,000 people within the next 20 years and that there will be enough people come here to make such a population."

Of greater importance then whether California will grow, however is how the state will grow, the governor said.

"The numerical growth of our population should not be our concern so much as how our people will live" he said.

"It is far more important that our cities become better than it is that they become larger.

"Our natural resources should not be evaluated by their extent or diversity but by their usefulness to all the people—and by the manner in which we develop and conserve them not only for our own use but also for those who are to follow."

FOREST CHIEF LEAVES SERVICE FOR UN POST

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29—Stuart Bevier Show, chief of California's national forests for the past 20 years, is leaving the U. S. Forest Service to become deputy director and chief silviculturist in the forestry division of the United Nations Food and Agricultural Organization, according to announcement today in Washington, D. C. Lyle F. Watts, chief of the forest service U. S. Department of Agriculture..

Show will report for duty October 1 to his new chief, Marcel Leloup, former director of the French Department of Waters and Forests and now head of the FAO forestry division at its international headquarters in Washington.

The forestry division was established by the United Nations to facilitate the exchange of scientific information and personnel among forestry agencies throughout the world. It will be equipped with a staff of experts to undertake technical missions, advise nations concerning forest policy, and make universally available the results of studies in forest management and wood utilization. The world wide shortage of wood and other forest products has forced the immediate creation of this international service.

Born in Nebraska in 1886, Show came to California in his early youth, his father being the late Prof. A. B. Show, the first professor of history at Stanford University. He is a graduate of the Palo Alto high school, Stanford, B. S. 1908 and Yale School of Forestry.

Regional Forester Show began his forest service career in 1906 on the Shasta National Forest. From 1915 to 1917 he was in charge of the Feather River Branch of the California Forest and Range Experiment Station. In 1922 he was placed in charge of all forest research work in California, from which position he was promoted to regional forester on March 1, 1936. His entire forestry career has been in one state, California, a rare record among federal foresters.

As chief of the seventeen national forests in California, Show has administered an area of 19 1-2 million acres—approximately one fifth of the area of the state where timber, water, grazing and recreational resources valued at hundreds of millions of dollars, are a vital part of the economic and social life of the state.

Forester Show has won widespread recognition in technical research and in forest fire prevention and control. He is the author of many government bulletins and scientific articles on such subjects as climate and forest fires in California, logging methods and forestry practices applicable to the California pine region and other forestry problems and developments. He also helped prepare several special reports for congress on the nation's forestry and range problems and their solution.

Show is married has three daughters and one son who recently returned to the family home in Palo Alto from military service in the European theatre. He is a member of the Society of American Foresters, Friends of the Land, California Academy of Science, Commonwealth Club of California and Sierra Club.

HORSE RACE MEN OPPOSE DOG RACE ENTHUSIASTS

By Clem Whitaker

There are many paradoxes in politics—and when you mix sports and politics, almost anything can happne!

Santa Anita and Hollywood Park horse racing interests, for example are reported in sporting circles, to be contributing to a million dollar slush fund in an attempt to defeat a racing bill on the November ballot.

The measure in question, Propesition 2, happens to be a dog racing bill, instead of a horse track bill, but it is still an item for Ripley when gentlemen who live on the profits of the pari-mutuel windows find themselves in the strange role of crusaders against gambling.

If that keeps up the gentlemen might wake up some day and find the voters had taken them seroush—and voted out horse racing.

The name of Democratic Chairman Jimmy Roosevelt won't appear in the list of candidates on the California ballot this year, but the son of the late president may be looking forward to two or four years hence.

Young Roosevelt at any rate is all set to stump the state—covering Northern California during September and Southern California in October—even though the CIO-PAC-Democratic package deal has sprung new leaks and two of the remaining candidates on the slate will be conspicious by their absence in the Roosevelt caravan.

Roosevelt who is undoubtedly out to build a political following for future reference, reports that he isn't disturbed by the attitude of his stable of candidates—but expects to generate such enthusiasm in his barnstorming tour that the various Democratic nominees will soon join up.

Top ranking measure on the ballot thus far, in point of endorsements by major state wide organizations is Proposition 3, which would guarantee every California school teacher a minimum salary of at least $2400 a year.

The impressive list of endorsements for the school measure includes such outstanding organizations as the Republican and Democratic state conventions, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Disabled American Veterans, Native Sons of the Golden West, California State federation of Labor, United Auto Workers of California, California Congress of Parents and Teachers, California State Federation of Women's Clubs and the California Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Grand President Of Native Daughters Visits Grass Valley

Loretta M. Cameron, of San Francisco, Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West was in Grass Valley Monday August 26, on her official visit to Manzanita Parlor and others in this area.

While on her tour she is emphasizing the importance of not only the members of both the Native Daughters and the Native Sons but the public in general, supporting the forthcoming annual drive for funds by the central committee on homeless children. These funds are used by the committee to carry on its work of finding homes with foster parents for orphans, half orphans and children from broken homes, regardless of creed or color, according to Mrs. Cameron.

"Because of the tremendous wartime growth of California and increased costs of caring for the children prior to their adoption by foster parents, it became necessary for the central committee last year to appeal to the public for assistance in this worthwhile work" stated Mrs. Cameron. "Prior to that the work was financed entirely within the ranks of the two pioneer California organizations. The committee is appealing for general support again this year and all donations will be gratefully received.

Other points on her official itinerary include Naomi Parlor in Downieville, Imogen Parlor in Sierraville, and Loyal Parlor in Loyalton. She will visit parlors in Quincy, Portola, Alturas, Etna and Jackson on the present tour.

Ed Sharkey geheral convention chairman and Joe L. Lumpkin, national convention director urged all legionnaires planning to attend, who have not already done so, to contact their post adjutant. CALIFORNIA CENTENNIAL

Editors Note: These are California's Centennial Years. From 1846 to 1850 history was being made—the fight for independence from Mexico, the coming of the land hungry emigrants, the gold rush, the sudden growth of sleepy pueblos into bustling cities. Because of the remarkable opportunity this anniversary period offers many California communities to celebrate their historic beginnings, the regional service committee has prepared a series of articles plotting the course of events during those exciting years. This is the second.

The story of California's "Bear Flag" revolt forms a very colorful chapter in the state's early history—but a brief one. Actually it lived less than a month, a period marked by proclamations, flag raisings and various celebrations. It was also marked by skirmishes in which men died.

On June 15, 1846 the day after the capture of Sonoma and the raising of the bear flag, Commander William B. Ide issued a proclamation urging all citizens to join in the forming of a republican government. General Jose Castro, the commandant general at Monterey, retaliated with a proclamation urging all citizens to "resist the adventurers."

But it wasn't all a war of proclamations. Captain John C. Fremont, who had held his forces aloof from the hostilties, finally became convinced that Castro meant to attack. On June 23 he set out from Sutter's Fort from Sonoma with between 70 and 90 men.

Menwhile the bear flag men were also on the march. On June 24, a party of these Americans led by Henry L. Ford skirmished with a band of Californians commanded by Joaquin de la Torre at Rancho Olompali, a few miles north of San Rafael. One Californian died and the others retreated.

Two days later, three more Californians were killed by Fremont's forces, now totalling 130 men which had set out from Sonoma to San Rafael. But Torre tricked Fremont into believing that Sonoma was about to be attacked and Fremont returned to Sonoma.

Then the scene shifted southward to Yerba Buena (San Francisco) and Monterey. On July 1, Fremont and 12 men crossed the Golden Gate in a launch borrowed from the American ship Moscow and spiked the guns in the Spanish fort at Fort Point. On the same day Commodode John D. Sloat arrived off the coast of Monterey in the U. S. warship

The state was being set for the capture of Monterey and the end of the Bear Flag Revolt.

Development has been reported of a system of formulas by which a total of 1000 tones, tints and shades can be produced from six paints.

It is estimated that the new Mt Palomar, Calif., telescope will have a light range of 5,864,696,000,000,000,000 miles.

The "Uncle Sam" was the first steam boat to enter the Colorado River in 1852.

Agricultural engineering has been recommended by a University of California expert as an uncrowded field of opportunity for veteran students.

Edmund R. Malo, Lynn, Mass., (right) boards a boat at the Boston docks for Paris where he has been enrolled for a 3-year art course under the Veterans Administration's educational program. Bidding Malo bon voyage is Alan C. Frazer, VA director of public relations for the New England branch area. The veteran is one of the first to leave for a foreign school.

"Veterans Village" Wives Apply Home Making Course

Young wives of veteran students attending non-coeducational California Polytechnic college have just completed an unique experience in homemaking education on the campus. What they learned in special classes conducted jointly by the college and the state bureau of homemaking education was applied in solving everyday situations in their respective homes at the 125 unit on campus veterans village.

The arrival on the campus of the state technical college last quarter of some 300 married students, some just newlyweds, not only complicated the college's housing problem but also posed the problem of what could be done to aid the wives in their homemaking efforts. Although homemaking courses were a part of the original curriculum of the school when it was established in 1901, no girls have attended the college since 1928.

President Julian A. McPhee who is also state director of vocational education, requested aid from Miss Bertha Akin, chief of the bureau of homemaking education and Mrs. C. P. Snyder, in charge of adult education for the bureau. Special courses which will end August 17, were set up early in July with Mrs. Orma Farnham, adult education specialist, in charge.

At the invitation of many of the wives, Mrs. Farnham visited a number of their homes and reported she was impressed by their resourcefulness and ability in making these small movable houses and trailers cheerful and effective with a minimum of modern conveniences.

A survey of the married veterans at the college indicated that more than half of them had children under three years of age. The care of these children, the preparation of economical but nutritious meals, and the making and mending of clothing provides a real test for these student wives who must stay within the budget of their $90 to $110 GI allowance.

The new single unit hearing aids have been made possible by the development of compact "mini-max" batteries which gave important service in various fields during the war.

Latest Data On State's Crops

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 29—The following picture of agricultural conditions in California is drawn from the most recent reports of the California crop and livestock reporting service:

Cotton: Production prospects for California cotton as of August 1 are relatively better than for recent years. A total crop of 431,000 bales is indicated from a probable 357,000 acres to harvest, an equivalent average yield of 570 pounds lint per acre.

Field Crops: Good progress was made during July. Despite some extremely hot days damage was negligible. Water supplies are ample for summer needs. Harvesting of wheat, barley, oats and flaxseed is about completed in the main areas.

Wool: The 1946 wool clip is estimated at 17,584,000 pounds, 14 per cent under that of 1945. The average fleece weight was 7.1 pounds, slightly heavier than usual.

Earthquakes have seasons—the northern hemisphere maximum being in January with slight prevalence in August and October.

It is estimated the government required 13 million cases of eggs for drying in the first six months of 1946.

Question: What Is "Moderate" Drink

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26—What is a "moderate" amount of alcohol?

A definition of this conjectural point was attempted by Dr. Roy M. Dorcus, chairman of the Department of Psychology on the Los Angeles campus of the University of California at the university's recent Institute on Alcoholic Studies held under the auspices of university extension and the current summer sessions.

"In most social drinking the individual consumes from one to three cocktails or several bottles of beer, or several glasses of wine," Dr. Dorcus said. "The amount of alcohol taken into the body under these circumstances depends upon the concentration of the alcohol in the beverage but the range would be from 30 cc. to 150 cc.

"For subjects in a fasting condition about 35 cc. of alcohol in 20 per cent solution will produce a maximum concentration of 70 mg. of alcohol per 100 cc. of blood; 50 cc. of alcohol in a similar solution will produce alcohol concentration in the

"While there is considerable inblood of about 90 mg. per 100 cc.. dividual variation of reaction to these concentrations of alcohol in the blood clinical diagnosis of intoxication is not made in most subjects until the concentration reaches 150 mg. per 100 cc. of blood."

Traveling with children?

Next time, try the train

The train offers a great many advantages to parents traveling with children:

1 Safety. Statistics prove that you and your children are safer on the train than in your own home. That's pretty hard to beat.

2 Low cost. Children under 5 ride FREE when accompanied by an adult, children from 5 to and including 11, half fare.

3 Pullman berths cost the same whether used by one or two people. Thus a mother with a child can "double up" with the child in a berth for no additional Pullman fare.

4 Children get seats in chair cars and coaches just like adults, even though they ride free or for half fare.

5 Southern Pacific dining cars offer a wide variety of food for children as well as adults. A special children's menu offers meals at less than adult cost. Ingredients and facilities are provided for the preparation of formulas and special diets.

6 On the train, children have plenty of room to move around. They aren't "cooped up" as in so many other forms of transportation. And they will get a friendly reception from our trainmen, most of whom have children of their own.

7 Traveling on the train is highly educational for children. They see their country intimately, at ground level.

8 Children love to ride on a train. Remember when you were a child—what fun it was to take a train trip?

Double Bill Coming To Broadway Theatre

A double bill features the show at the Broadway Theatre tomorrow and Saturday nights. "Badman's Territory" starring Randolph Scott and Ann Richards, and Ding Dong Williams strikes a novel note in screen entertainment. Glenn Vernon, Marcy McGuire and Felix Bressart have the top roles in the tuneful offering, which introduces to the film going public the eleven year old concert pianist sensation, Richard Korbel.

Vernon has the title role of a jazz-loving clarinetist and the leader of a small "hot" band. Miss McGuire pontrays Angela, secretary to Huga Meyerhold (Bressart) the harassed music leader who must deliver a strictly modern symphony for his studio's current picture..

Angela promptly suggests that he hire Ding Dong which he does, only to discover that that the boy is strictly an ear player and can't read or write a not of music. Angela then persuades a couple of her studio arrangers to follow Ding Dong around and set down his "hot licks" but this scheme crashes on the rocks of Ding Dong's romantic complications before the problem is solved.

LOOKING AHEAD

President--Harding College

Eat Cake

Today's acute housing shortage was in plain view ten years ago. Experts in the business of building and equipping homes were writing articles and making speeches back in the 1930's forcasting what they called the building boom of the 1940's. They supported their predictions with sound reasoning and leaders in many equipment lines arranged to meet the demand.

A quick look at census figures, years before Pearl Harbor, would have convinced almost anybody that an unusually big share (say 20%) of the U. S. population would reach an age to be married between 1940 and 1946. Patently this would call for more places to live and, true to form under free enterprise, business men began getting ready quietly to serve this market, but war interfered.

Plans Not Executed.

Wars always frustrate plans, and few were revised more in World War II than those of the building trades. Priorities on materials, general shortage of labor and the compelling urge for victory changed most things but the predicted need for more housing came right on schedule. It is even bigger than experts estimated ten years ago because war retarded building and accelerated marrying.

Plans made before the war for meeting this expected peak demand are still workable plans. If industry were free today as it was then, people who want homes would be getting them a great deal faster. I believe Herbert U. Nelson of the National Association of Real Estate Boards has proved that Washington bureaucracy is chiefly to blame for today's housing shortage.

Facts to Remember

It's an old story that America has housing a plenty, and it was always true until right lately. France, England and other European countries that have endured regulation of home building since World War I have been short of housing meanwhile. Bureaucracy got a firm grip on American building during World War II and now hates to let-go, shortage or no shortage.

The O.P.A. is the sorest bunion on the toe of our progress. Here is an illustration: Manufacturers of fir doors got caught behind increased manufacturing costs and asked O.P.A. for permission to raise prices 75c per door. It was refused. Result: No doors by mass production. Carpenters can build doors where they hang them, of course, at much loss of time and at several times normal cost.

Industry Is Ready.

A similar man-made muddle built a bottleneck in window sash. There's almost no end to the roster of crippling rules in this one industry. Miles Colean, a thoroughly respected Washington economist, says that industries producing building materials are fully reconverted, full capacity restored. Still the most productive nation of history is handcuffed and can't house itself. Why?

A price-fixing agency, while proclaiming its loyalty to the people, has refused many small strategic upward revisions, thus halting production. Consumers do without things or pay amazing prices for makeshifts. It savors of the Marie Antoinette school of thought. On being informed that by reason of her extravagance her subjects had no bread, she said "Let them eat cake."

"Christ Jesus" is the subject for the Chrisian Science lesson sermon for Sunday, September 1, with the golden text from John. "The father judge no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the son; that all men should honor the son even as they honor the father" (5:22,23.)

The following citations are included in the sermon:

Matthew 2:1, 11; "Now when Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea in the days of Herod the king, behold there came wise men from the east to Jerusalem and when they were come into the house they saw the young child with Mary his mother and fell down and worshipped him and when they had opened their treasures they presented unto him gifts, gold, and frankincense and myrrh."

"Science and Health with key to the scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "Jesus was the highest human concept of the perfect man. He was inseparable from Christ the Messiah —the divine idea of God outside the flesh. This enabled Jesus to demonstrate his control over matter. Angels announced to the wise men of old this dual appearing and angels whisper it through faith to the hungering heart in every age." .p 482.
